TUESDAY, OCTOBER 21st 1862.

CLOSING OF CONGRESS

PRESIDENT MITRE'S SPEECH.

Solemn Te Deum.

The Congress met yesterday in general assembly to close their legislative labors for 1862. The vice-President D. Marcos Paz, in the chair; after reading the acts of their convocation in May 1862, and of the installation of General Mitre, deputations were named to receive H. Excellency and the Ministers. At 1 P.M. the President took the chair, and pronounced a brilliant harangue; he announced to both houses the termination of the session, thanking them for the patience and right judgment which had characterized their deliberations. He congratulated the republic on the successful issue of the grand experiment to construct Argentine nationality; and presented that history would rank the Congress of 1862 in the same category with the Junta of 1810, the Tucuman assembly of 1816, and the famous parliament of Rivadavia on 1826. He spoke of the perils happily past, and the brilliant future opening to us, when we shall have the Chaco frontier secured, and the Cordoba railway become the great highway between the coast & the interior. He called on the deputies of the provinces to fulfil their duty to the country by spreading in recess in the promulgation of liberal ideas & of a brotherly feeling of union, whereby above Argentine nationality would arise a real fact. He wished it to be proclaimed, even to the uttermost confines, though the vast pampas as far as the foot of the Andes, that Buenos Ayres, the fact to undertake a laborious negotiation and the last to rest from such toil, was earnest to carry out the principles of republicanism and progress; and that he would spare no effort to co-operate in to this end, which was his sole ambition. He saluted respectfully the sovereign authority of the people, embodied in the delegates present, and before separating, to return to the bosom of their families, he would invite them to repair with him to the temple of the Most High, there to return fervent thanks for the visible protection vouchsafed by Providence during the late session.

Loud applause greeted the close of this speech and of Congress; several vivas were given from the bar, which was crowded with happy faces, and the Ministry, corps diplomatique, senators, deputies, and public officers, proceeded in a long file to the Cathedral. Here the Bishop and Chapter were in attendance, and benediction of the Sacrament being given, the organ entoned "Te Deum laudamus." And a large congregation filled the sacred isles, and the banners of Spain and Brazil were suspended over the state devotees, who knelt in double line facing the altar. The President in his grand fauteil, surrounded by his five cabinet ministers, seemed deeply impressed, but some of the deputies smiled rather irreverently, and the moral muse was anything but imposing.

Leaving from the church, His Excellency found the artillery battalion en grande tenue, drawn up to pay the honours of the occasion, while a private 4 horse carriage, driven by postillions with buff and white cockades, an escorted by the mounted troopers, received him. There were other carriages for the ministers, &c., and as the troops presented arms, the cavalcade thore off and the deputies hurried to their several lodgings to lay aside court dress and prepare for mastication.

Thus ended the Congress of 1862!

A tilt with the Scotsman.

The last packet brought us a challenge from the land of cakes, in the shape of a "Leader" of the Scotsman written apparently with out either object than to attack a rising rival in the southern continent. We were thunderstruck to learn that some of our local colleagues dared with jaw-ever multiplied against us, in our English paper. So much honorable mention and flattering notice, recently conferred on our humble efforts, had almost intoxicated us, when, by strange accident, the same mail enabled us with the blow of a Scotch chymist and claps us on the back with the appointment as agents of the Cotton Supply Association. Subsidized on either side of the Cheviots, Glasgow is right finds the Standard is with partiality or Manchester has formed a better judgment and we are really capable of progress. We leave our readers to take their choice.

Is. The Scotsman ridicules the 12 folio paper, large type and narrow columns. Stating aside the fact that this would have been easier to take a periodical on its introduction to many a rival, we will remind our colleague that this paper represents a century of advancement in its more material development. For 57 years the English press in South America was limited to a small weekly sheet, and the Daily Standard was at first regarded as a lunatic attempt in a city where our country men had been years in and where foreign papers gave but small credit. The B. Standard, also, is the largest paper published in the continent, and if not equal in its literary attractions as it ought to be, it is the best of its size, as to matter and mechanical execution, as regards the kind respect with which the daily Standard has set to endeavour.

2nd. Our modesty or rather that local news occupies the first and more important page of our paper, and where foreign papers gave but small credit. The B. Standard, also, is the largest paper published in the continent, and if not equal in its literary attractions as it ought to be, it is the best of its size, as to matter and mechanical execution, as regards the kind respect with which the daily Standard has set to endeavour.

3rd. That our columns are narrow is a matter of choice, and not of necessity, as by that fact we make a more convenient division of matter, and the reader who has to wade through long paragraphs of print at half a penny per line, will be glad to see the end of the matter in hand. We have no objection to change the form of our columns, but we must remind our colleague that the Standard has set to endeavour.

4th. That we are behind the times in publishing the Weekly from the Daily, and prefer the publication for the Englishmen of either period, as the additional expense can be spared, and Intelligencia is not to be had in the country districts, where we must rely on our weekly reprinting the Weekly from the Daily, and profit by the publication. He saluted respectfully the sovereign authority of the people, embodied in the delegates present, and before separating, to return to the bosom of their families, he would invite them to repair with him to the temple of the Most High, there to return fervent thanks for the visible protection vouchsafed by Providence during the late session.

The Federal Courts.

The intolerable delays, and consequent difficulties in every branch of business, have become a subject of public complaint, and a most serious one, which, in the best regulated communities, are as clear as daylight, are raised and discussed in both Houses of Parliament, and in the press, and remedies are sought for and applied. Even in the United States, where, as in England, the common law is the basis of their jurisprudence, and where the judges are appointed for life, and are removable only for misconduct, the system has been found to work so badly that it has been changed, and the judges are now elected by the people for a limited term of years. In the Federal Courts, more than in most, people think despotic power is perfectly constitutional; they will prefer a hearing to no trial. But if they do not like to apply the certificate of the Judge, they have the less we have of them the better.

The statement in Sunday morning's Review to the effect that at half past 4 on Saturday afternoon, Ounces were offered at 396 lfs. is asserted to be without the slightest foundation, and quite a gratuitous effort on the part of the Commercial editor of that paper to belie down specie in the market we have been requested to mention this is in order to prevent the recurrence of such statements.

The arrivals coastwise, for the last week, have been heavier than usual, and merit attention, in so much as the majority of those articles are paid for in specie. After a while, we, no doubt, will get our ounces back again; but still it is a fact worthy of notice, that the river business is rapidly increasing in Rosario above we notice by the Custom House returns, how brisk things are getting. In Corrientes, also, we perceive that the export to are augmenting. This is a good sign, particularly at this time of the year, which, generally speaking, everything in the shape of produce is exhausted. It only goes to show how true our calculations some time ago were, respecting the quantity of produce in the interior. Buenos Aires had during the winter all the barracas crammed with wool owing to the depression in that article, but in the provinces people held up there produce not so much from any anxiety to force up prices, as from a secret dread of another disturbance. The President has so far cleared the little Argentine bark clear of all political breakers. The result is obvious; in the interior, confidence is restored, and in Buenos Aires is the best market, the Bolsa is crowded with small cash.

In Cordova, large transactions are anticipated for the Mersey, and the general impression is, that it will rule at 6½ on England. Many merchants think it convenient to draw now, so that they can have the use of the money to purchase wool. We do not apprehend that the fluctuations in the paper-money will materially affect the price of wool; on the contrary, produce will look more to the demand at home than anything else. At present wool rules high, and very remunerative prices can be obtained on contracts; but should the cause which creates such demand be removed—should the 600,000 men which President Lincoln has called for not be forthcoming; then the corresponding number of military jackets and coats will be useless, and holders will be obliged to trust to the European markets, which, so far as we can learn, experience to remedy of the raw material.

Even though the ounces she fell as high as $150, by the meetings of a European demand, wool will not fetch over 20 pays whilst, on the other hand, though ounces were down to 250, if the European markets keep firm, merino wool will sell readily at 120. Sheep farmers, therefore, need not attach so much importance to the ounce market. As we said before anyone who can secure a good price is indebted to refuse it, in the present state of affairs

DECLARATION.

Conquete de Montenegro

Les lettres de Constantinople du 27 août nous apprennent que les armées des connexes la succès de Danube finirent au montenégro. Ces nouvelles ont été accueillies avec une grande joie par les musulmans. Les représentans des puissances interessées ont remis une Note collective à la Porte pour l'inviter à user de modération.

On considère l'occupation du Montenegro comme un fait accompli. Alex-Efendi, secrétaire général du ministère des affaires étrangères, doit être envoyé dans cette province comme commissaire spécial, afin de régler les diverses questions soulevées par l'occupation ottomane et d'adopter les mesures qui seront jugées les plus efficaces pour prévenir une nouvelle insurrection. Ces dispositions paraîtront sont être prématurées.

En effet, voici ce qu'on mande de Ragusa, 8 septembre :

"Alexar Pacha est à Cattaro.

"Les ravages font beaucoup de ravages dans Parmée turque. Les engagemens entre les troupes ottomanes et les montenégrins continuent. De nouveaux convois de victimes et de munitions sont arrivés de Constantinople. Il est également annoncé que les renforts de 15 bataillons, qui avaient été demandés à Omer-Pacha, à la dernière conférence tenue à Cettigne."

Il résulte des informations particulières de la Patrie, que si Midhat a quitté le commandement de troupes montenégrines, cette résolution n'a en rien amoindri son influence auprès de sa fille le prince Nicolas. Le célèbre vizir a conservé la réputation qu'il s'est acquise dans la lutte contre les Turcs, et particulièrement à la bataille de Grahovo, où il remporta un éclatant succès. Les chefs montenégrins font un grand cas de ses conseils, et Midhat ne manquera pas d'user de son influence pour maintenir la bonne harmonie entre le prince Nicolas et le vizir Omer-Pacha, qui a obligé depuis trois mois l'armée ottomane dans les défilés de la Dugna, et arrivé de Nikchich il n'est pas moins certain que sa présence et sa connaissance du pays ne lui soient d'une grande utilité.

Le même journal ajoute également, d'après une nouvelle source, et examinons l'erreur où déjà, dans les premiers de Cettigne, nous avons été induits, que les troupes ne manquent pas des différentes espèces. Les transports ont pris un mouvement sur les armes dans les eaux de Scutari, et un nouveau magasin a été établi à Podgoritza. Les approvisionnements de bouche et de guerre, comme pour la poudre, sont en quelques évènements. Le marché d'Omer-Pacha, dit-on, expédie de cette part que les munitions nécessaires à l'exportation de Montenegro, qui est en ce moment encore aux mains d'Omer-Pacha, doit rendre cela la Dugna le 2 septembre.

"Ainsi s'est exécutée cette retraite qui semblait impossible et désastreuse. Les troupes de Mac Clellan ont exécuté une marche de flanc pendant sur la rive nord du James River, qui les a mis exposées à toutes les attaques de l'ennemi dans les conditions les plus désavantageuses.

"Pourquoi les confédérés ne sont-ils abstenus de toute démonstration? Pourquoi ont-ils laissé échapper une armée qu'ils se vantaient eux-mêmes de pouvoir enfermer dans une impasse d'où elle ne pourrait sortir qu'en passant sous des fourches caudines? On donne plusieurs raisons de cette inaction. Certains prétendent que l'armée du Sud avait été si grandement affaiblie à Richmond par les détachements qu'elle a été obligée de fournir, qu'elle se trouvait entièrement hors d'état de tenter une attaque ainsi on l'habile dans la retraite de la rivière James.
